Safeball with base plate JSD-TD1-130700 Suitable for safety functions, number of contacts as normally open 0, number of contacts as normally closed 0, number of contacts as changeover 0, protection class (IP) IP67, protection class (NEMA) 6, two-hand controls are available For example, used on presses and semi-automatic machines with manual loading. If there is a risk of injury to the operator, it must be ensured that both hands are outside the danger area before starting the dangerous movement of the machine. It must also be ensured that the dangerous movement is stopped before the operator can reach the danger area after releasing an actuator. The ergonomic shape of the Safeball is perfectly adapted to the human hand and thus supports the natural gripping reflex. A conscious triggering is supported by a slight but clearly noticeable click (comparable to a mouse click). The features of the Safeball are: ergonomic shape, easy and deliberate triggering, high level of protection against manipulation, no cover for the control parts required, IP67. In addition to the individual Safeballs, there are also ready-made, portable two-handed controls.
